FORTY CHINESE dignitaries are on their way from the west, and will stop over to see the washing outlook in Salt Lake.

THE HOME Dramatic Club is making a heavy display in printing for their Fourth of July performances of Fettered.

THE UTAH Central will sell excursion tickets at half rates to and from all points on their line, good from July 3d to 5th.

BITTS & WATSON have finished the excavation for the addition to St. Mary's Academy, and rock work will be shortly commenced.

NEW NOTARIES public appointed yesterday were John Duncan, of Heber City, and E. M. Timoney, of Marysville, Platte County.

THE WEDDING reception of Mr. and Mrs. Art. Simmons, nee Miss Polly Culmer, was held at the residence of G. F. Culmer, Esq., last evening.

A DRAKE laden with five row boats passed through the streets yesterday afternoon, evidently on their way to the depot to be taken to the lake.

WE ARE daily receiving hogs from exasperated Ninth Warders, who claim that their district is being used as a regular pasture by wandering cattle. Whose is the fault?

WE ARE informed that the arrangements are all completed for the game between the Barker line and the Red Boys at Washington Square, on July 4th, for a purse of $50.

A WHEEL flew from a buggy in front of the Hooper & Eldredge Block, yesterday, throwing the occupants—a lady and gentleman—into the ground, but with no serious results.

AMONG the new publications on sale at Dwyer's are "The Fall of the Great Republic," by Sir Henry Standish Corfield, and "Victory Hugo and His Time," by Alfred Barbou.

TRAFFIC KEEPS up, whatever may be said of business generally. Seventy-five passengers on the east, twenty of whom are bound for Salt Lake, came in over the D. & R. G. to-day.

SEVERAL DISTINGUISHED Frenchmen, who are on their way from San Francisco to Salt Lake, telegraphed to the D. & R. G. to send an interpreter out to meet them. Dr. Hugg was dispatched.

AN ERROR in yesterday's issue made it appear that the meeting of Zion's Benevolent Building Society this evening would be held at 8 o'clock. The correct time is 8 o'clock and Shoe Factory the place.

THE OGDEN Athletic Base Ball Club went to the capital, this morning, with a determination to secure another triumph over the Reds.—Ogden Herald, 25th. And there are rumors afloat that they succeeded.

A REQUEST of "Rock Hollow" yesterday asked a Herald representative whether the dry benches would get any relief this year. We referred him to the City Council, and he ambled in the direction of the City Hall.

GOVERNOR MURRAY, yesterday, issued a proclamation setting the day for the commencement of the September term of the Third District Court, on the second Monday instead of the fourth Thursday in September.

SOME IDEA of the popularity of the Celery, Beef and Iron compound has been gained from a knowledge of the fact that one firm alone—Roberts & Nelden—have already shipped in their second consignment of cases.

G. F. CULMER & Bros. are erecting on the fragment alley known as Olive street a commodious fireproof warehouse three stories in height, and with dimensions of 30 by 40. The firm claim they will have, when finished, one of the best fireproof warehouses in the west.

M. J. CHRESEMAN was absent from his post at the Union National yesterday. The occasion was a stirring one in his household, being neither more nor less than the arrival of a beautiful soprano-lunged girl. The event occurred at 8 o'clock a.m.

THE OGDEN'S JUBILANT.

The Reds Bite the Dust to the Tune of 8 to 11.

A heavy turn out greeted the Athletics of Ogden and the Reds of Salt Lake as they stepped upon the grassy arena yesterday and prepared to grapple for the championship of the Territory. The Ogden's won the toss, and the Reds took their innings. For the first half hour it looked very much as if the old luck of the Reds had returned to them and that the Weber County boys would go home disconsolate. A spurt in the third innings sent the score standing 4 to 8 in the town boys' favor. The fine discipline of the Ogden's kept that 8 standing there, however, while they steadily crept up towards it. At the end of the fifth innings they had jumped it 6 to 8 amid great excitement. In the sixth innings they bid fair to make the score even, and would have done so had not a long fly been taken in by Peck, and a double play made on second. They raised it one run however, and in the seventh Farley came in, putting the figures 8 to 5 amid a frenzy of cheering.

The Reds were again whitewashed on their eighth. The Ogden's came in surrounded by applause.

Donnelly went to the bat and made second, and was sent home by a daisy hit of Stanford's. Browning went out a foul; C. Wells sent a three base hit over right amid wild cheers, and came in on a pass ball. Reed made first on a scratch and knocked Larson off his pias for two or three minutes, sending his shoe into the air in a manner which would have done credit to Duggan; Farley went out on a long fly to centre; O. Wells went out first by Golding to Larson.

The Ogden's went out jubilant and the Reds came in disgraced with a score standing 8 to 11. Hall perished at first; Golding went out by a hot liner to Nebeker, who was enthusiastically applauded. Watson, now the "forlorn hope" of his side, came in with a dizzy expression on his face and perished on strikes. The Ogden's did not take their last innings, and the crowd dispersed cheering for the victors.

The feature of the day—and a grave one for the Reds—was the fact that the Ogden's "dropped" to West's delivery, and in the closing innings batted him as he was never batted before. He explains this by the fact that there are so many left-handers in the Ogden club. Nebeker's playing at short, Wells' pitching (and his stopping two hot balls livid from the bat), Browning's omnipresence, Farley's plays at 3d, and the general cool and steady playing in the field were the noticeable points of the Athletics' playing. The Reds were not at all up to their standard, though Ridges and Margetts did some good fielding. It was noticeable that there were as many cheers for the visitors as for the home team. The police regulations were well enforced, though a stricter man should be placed in front of the grand stand. An agreeable feature was the pecking of the score after each inning in a conspicuous place, Harlow, the sign writer, manipulating the chalk. The Ogden boys received their expenses and $30.

The Latest.

Frederick M. Hansen, of Pleasant Green, was arrested on Thursday, at noon, on a complaint charging him with unlawful cohabitation committed with Anna Maria Hansen, Anna Katharine Jensen and Christina Hansen. A brief examination, being enough to entitle the commissioner to his $5 and fees, resulted before Mr. McKay, Thursday evening. At 10 o'clock the Grand Jury took up the case and the government set up the additional fees. There were twelve witnesses, many of them children, waiting in the witness room during the morning.

Mr. Hansen was one of the nine against whom indictments were found and reported. He was arrested for unlawful cohabitation but released on $300 bail.

THE HALF-HOLIDAY MOVE.

The Subject as Discussed Last Evening.

Somewhere about fifty of the employees of the business houses of this city, met in Calder's Hall last evening, to take into consideration the practicability of obtaining a Saturday half-holiday.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Royal Barney, and Mr. H. W. Naibitt was elected chairman, and after considerable skirmishing, Mr. Brown accepted the position of secretary.

In taking the chair, Mr. Naibitt said he presumed there were many differences of opinion as to the method to be pursued in order to attain the result desired, and he hoped for a full and free discussion of the subject by the gentlemen present. He had his own ideas of what should be done and what should not be done, but would defer an expression of them until he had heard from some of the others.

Mr. Barney thought the division—if any occurred—would be as to the best day to obtain a half holiday—as to whether it should occur on Wednesday, Thursday or Saturday. In the east and in England some branches of trade granted the employees a half-holiday in the middle of the week—say Wednesday or Thursday—while others had granted the respite from labor on Saturday. Experience, however, had proven that Saturday was the most popular, at least among the employees, and he believed the sentiment among those present was in favor of the last-named day; the question was, can we get Saturday, and if not, what day will be most convenient for our employers? Wednesday or Thursday afternoon would certainly be preferable to no holiday at all.

Mr. H. J. Walk would prefer Saturday; that day has many advantages over any other, at least in so far as those present are concerned. He gave his experience of the holiday movement in different parts of England. In London the dry goods stores close at 2 p.m.; if there is any obstacle in the way of obtaining Saturday, he thought it would be advisable to ask for some other afternoon. He thought that if the half-holiday could be obtained on Saturday it would have the effect to keep at home many who now desecrate the Sabbath by indulging in outdoor pursuits, such as fishing, etc. He hoped the desired end would be attained.

There being considerable difference manifested among those present in expressing their views, in order that a decision might be arrived at, Mr. Barney moved that it be the sense of the meeting that Wednesday afternoon should be the time asked for.

The chairman, Mr. Naibitt, was in favor of Thursday, because it had been his experience that that day was the quietest of the entire week, and, as a result, the services of employees could be more easily spared, and with less inconvenience to the merchants and other business men.

Mr. Fields said Wednesday appeared to him as being a better day; a great deal of country produce was always brought into town on Thursday.

Mr. Bosch thought it would be advisable, at least, try and obtain Saturday.

Mr. Frank did not see any reason for asking for a holiday in the middle of the week. Saturday was the only day. Thought that a half-holiday would be beneficial both to employer and employee.

Mr. Duke thought that even if the requests of the gentlemen present were not granted now, a discussion of the matter would do no harm. The merchants would lose nothing by allowing a half-holiday on Saturday, and that day was certainly the best for all purposes.

The chairman then made quite a lengthy address, in which he referred to Sabbath desecration, intellectual and spiritual faculties, the hours of labor in England, how the members should spend the holiday if they succeeded in obtaining it, etc. He thought it would be impossible to inaugurate a general closing on Saturday, as a great many of the smaller stores took in more money on that day than during any three others. Foundries, factories, wholesale houses, banks, etc., might close, but it would be almost impossible to induce many retail places to put up the shutters.

Mr. Frank thought Mr. Naibitt had wandered away from his subject; thought everybody had a right to enjoy his holiday or his Sabbath as he chose.

Louis Bamberger made a few remarks that were highly appreciated, suggesting that in view of the fact that the employees were asking the employers for something, it would be well to ask the latter what day would be most convenient for them to grant the wished-for respite.

After more skirmishing a committee of five—Messrs. Alder, Bosch, Barney, Rogers and Naibitt—were appointed to wait upon the merchants and ascertain their views in regard to the matter under consideration.

A Prospective Out.

Preparations are making for a grand out in the canyons, in which the entire Sixth Infantry will participate, the event to occur between the 1st and 21st of September next. It is understood that General McCook is now rustling through the Weber and other canyons, the object of his trip being to select some suitable place for the mammoth camp. Further particulars will doubtless be made public on his return.

An Offensive Breath.

Is most distressing, not only to the person afflicted if he be any pride, but to those with whom he comes in contact. It is a delicate matter to speak of, but it is a delicate matter to speak of. Bad breath and catarrhs are inseparable. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases as thousands can testify.

THE PROFESSOR.

Enthusiastic Reception of Gillette, Miss Jackson and the Play.

The difference in the taste of communities was never more strongly illustrated than last evening, when the Professor—the play which the Madison Square people in their western tour have only attached a secondary importance to, which in advertising they have entirely overshadowed by the Private Secretary "booming"—and which in the east is always the inferior attraction of the two—"caught on," dazzled, enthused and thoroughly charmed a Salt Lake audience. Owing to the night being the opening of "Our Club to the Lake," there was not so large a gathering as on the first night, though the dress circle was well filled. Those who were absent last evening, however, should by all means attend the farewell representation of the Professor, to-night.

The honors of the evening were divided equally between Gillette, the author of the play, and Miss Belle Jackson, for whom the lady part might have been written. Gillette has jumped a hundred per cent. in the estimation of those who have seen both his Private Secretary and his Professor; he is an imitable actor in a certain eccentric style, and the play shows that he is among the foremost of our American play writers; no sweeter, purer and more tender idyll than the Professor, we do not remember to have seen upon the stage; it has a substantial plot, too, and a general raison d'être vastly pleasing to the westerners who looked in vain for reason, substance or probability in the Private Secretary.

Great as Gillette is in his character, it would be hard to imagine an entirely successful rendition of the piece with Daisy Brown in the hands of anyone else than Belle Jackson; those who growled at the Private Secretary on account of the lack of any dramatic interest, and who were bored by the Madison Square incident by sending us out no more Elsie Ellsers or Carrie Turners, were broadly smiling last night, and acknowledging that they had been a little "previous." Miss Belle Jackson presents in Daisy Brown a character new to the stage; anything more beautiful and natural than the artless innocence and simplicity of her untutored young lady, and asked who slang, and her childish expressions of wonderment at all the professor's "knew," we have never seen on the stage; the love scene was incomparably done, and so quiet a portion of the play should so rouse the audience as to make them call the actors before the curtain, tells unmistakably how artistically it has all done; Miss Jackson is a beautiful girl and has a beautiful part, which in the hands of any one less gifted, might easily have become an objectionable hoyden or a forward miss; in hers it is the perfection of artlessness. Tannehill had an immense part in the detective and played it with rare skill and immense favor with the audience. Mr. Kennedy had nothing to approach his opportunity in the other piece, but it goes without saying that he was also immense. Mr. Hal Warren made an immense hit out of the white headed boy Gustavus, and everyone else in the company, the ruffian Brown and the charming Annie in particular, was at his or her best.

This afternoon the Private Secretary, and to-night the farewell of the company in the Professor; we can not help thinking that had this matter opened the engagement, the money results would have been vastly better.

THE UNION NATIONAL.

A Glance at the Interior—Popularity of the Safe Deposit System.

The invitation of the president of the Union National Bank, published in THE HERALD, asking the public to call and inspect the new quarters generally and the safe deposit system particularly, is being eagerly responded to. A reporter of this paper, who was shown through the commodious and elegant building yesterday, was informed that applications for boxes had already begun to pour in, and the cashier said he was surprised to note how readily business men had embraced the idea. While the reporter was being shown the glistering rows of steel and iron locks with which the sides of the vault are studded, a real estate broker came in for the purpose of inspecting the boxes and learning something of the system. He was apparently charmed by what he saw, and at once said the day of depositing securities in tin boxes had gone by. The reasonable rental of the boxes—ranging from $5 to $25 per annum, according to size (4 in San Francisco the price of a box corresponding to the $5.00 size is $4.00 a month) puts them within the reach of all classes of business men who wish a safe place for valuable papers and the comfortable assurance which the owner of one can carry to bed with him, that his securities are invulnerably secure from robber, fire, or bank failure, is by no means a small consideration. A clerk has a desk near the safe deposit door, and his sole duty will be to attend to those owning boxes; without this clerk's key, as previously explained, no customer can unlock his box; and without the customer's key, the clerk is equally powerless to open it. The Union National now has 545 boxes ready for rent.

The work Tullidge has done on the ceiling and vault, and particularly on the latter, is in the perfection of taste. The cherry woodwork throughout was carved and laid down by a firm in Chicago; the total cost of it being $3,000.

A BUSY DAY.

Twelve Indictments Filed—Miss Devereux Released—The Hamilton Case Ignored.

The Grand Jury filed into Court yesterday afternoon and laid twelve indictments on the clerk's table, nine being for offenses under the United States laws, and three under Territorial. Miss Devereux was brought down and a last attempt made to induce her to answer the questions as to whether or not Newsom was the father of her child. She still refused any answer. The Grand Jury at length decided that it had ample evidence to convict without her testimony, and an indictment was accordingly found. Upon the motion of the District Attorney, therefore, she was released from custody and immediately bound over to appear as a witness at the September term. Miss Starkey is now the only female inmate of the Pen.

The Grand Jury reported that they had ignored the charge against Bishop Hamilton, of Mill Creek. The young lady supposed to be his second wife turned out to be his niece, told a straightforward story, said she was not married to the bishop at all, and the whole thing fell through.

The Grand Jury and the Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

TRADE OUTLOOK EAST.

Over Production Everywhere the Result of the Depression.

A gentleman who is well known in business and social circles in this city as a member of a prominent New York mercantile house, said to a Herald reporter yesterday that he had seldom seen the business outlook so blue in the east as at the present time. "It is my opinion," he said, "that the dullness is due to a very grave cause; we have arrived at that stage where we can make four months enough boots, hats, clothing, everything in fact that we use, to last us a whole year; in the other eight months we must cut down our forces of men. The improvements in machinery are thus largely to blame for the depression. When the machinery was being manufactured it took a good many hands to make it; once made, and it lasts a terrible while, as you can see from the 'longevity' of a sewing machine or a three-hing machine. I don't see much hope for a long time to come."

The same gentleman thought the universal reports of short crops ought to help Utah out, though he could not understand why, in face of the adverse reports, wheat should now only be selling for one dollar a bushel in New York.

The American Gentleman.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 25, 1885.

To the Editor of THE HERALD.
There seems to be several institutions in America that the Tribune "American gentlemen" cannot whip into line, notably, the decent newspapers of Salt Lake City and also a distant one, the San Francisco Argonaut, and the Salt Lake Theatre. How these American gentlemen do squirm because their threat to ignore the Theatre has had no effect. It has gone steadily on retaining its old prestige and gaining all the time in public favor. How I thank the San Francisco Argonaut for finding a name, a fitting name for these American gentlemen—"toad-eating flunkies." "Jew, I thank thee for that word."

He Came to Time.

Mr. Feeney, late barkeeper for Fitzgerald, and an intelligent looking young man, came into court yesterday, and gave himself up to the officers, who read the attachment to him that was issued on Wednesday, in consequence of his failure to appear as a witness in the celebrated case. He claimed, and there is good cause for supposing his statement to be true, that he understood the prosecuting attorney to say that it did not matter whether he came to the trial or not, and that as soon as he read THE HERALD of yesterday, from which he learned that he was wanted, he came in from the country. He left security for his appearance whenever wanted.

Off for New York.

Jake Leviberg leaves this morning over the U. P. for a run of several weeks to New York. While in the metropolis he will engage the services of a first-class cutter and fitter from one of the fashionable merchant tailor palaces, will select a complete stock of clothes, and return to Salt Lake as soon as practicable for the purpose of opening out in such a tailoring establishment as this city has not previously seen. He has leased one of the new and handsome stores now being finished by Mr. Jennings—a stand which could not be expected. We wish Jake success in his new venture, and have not the least doubt of his obtaining it.

ANOTHER UTAH INVENTION.

A Sulky Plow That Promises to Do Wonders.

Some of the gentlemen connected with the Salt Lake Foundry and Manufacturing Association, were present at Morris' Farm, over Jordan, yesterday morning, to witness the trial of a new sulky plow, the invention of a Utah man, and which was patented on May 19th of the present year. It weighs 275 pounds less than the best sulky plow now on the market, and has a draft, at least, 75 pounds lighter than the ordinary hand plow. From present indications, it will prove a formidable rival to any sulky plow now made, while some of the gentlemen who witnessed its operations, yesterday, claim that it is so far in advance of anything of the kind yet seen, that the present makes of sulky plows will seem "relics of barbarism" in comparison with it. Another trial will shortly be made, when further particulars will be forthcoming.
